Copywriting with AI

How creative can machines really be?

Agenda

Weren't humans supposed to write?

The holy grail of marketing

It's all about reaching....

The right person
(targeting)

- Keywords → Feeds, Shopping, DSA
- Demographics
- 1st party audiences + look-a-likes
- Other audiences (Affinity, In-market, Employment, Education)

→ Smart campaigns / Smart bidding

with the right message
(creative)

- STA → ETA → RSA
- Manual A/B testing → "Optimize" → RSA asset impressions / Ad Variations
- Text ads, display ads, videos, landing pages, any content.
- Human-generated → AI-assisted / AI - generated?

at the right time (and place)
(bidding)

Manual CPC → Bid adjustments → Smart bidding

The message reigns again (back to Mad Men)

- Right person and right time is slowly getting taken away from us through competition, algorithms or simply by being priced out of some of these areas. When all media becomes mass media, it's the message that matters. We have to become copywriters... again.
- If you're only good at targeting, you're a mechanic, not a marketer. Marketing is the crafting and the amplification of a message. The last 15 years, it's all been about amplification, and it could work with a 'meh' message.
- The coming years, the edge is going to be on the messaging side. You'll have to be a communicator first.
The amplification of that message is table stakes, everyone (or every algorithm) will know how to do that.

Ryan Deiss – Perpetual Traffic episode 334 (must-listen!)

So what should we do?

A: Become the best human copywriter we can possibly be?

B: Let the AI take over and find a new job?

Or C: something else?

Q: What is your favorite animal?

A: My favorite animal is a dog.

Q: Why?

A: Because dogs are loyal and friendly.

Q: What are two reasons that a dog might be in a bad mood?

A: Two reasons that a dog might be in a bad mood are if it is hungry or if it is hot.

Q: How many eyes does a giraffe have?

A: A giraffe has two eyes.

Q: How many legs does a frog have?

A: A frog has four legs.

Q: Are there any animals with three legs?

A: No, there are no animals with three legs.

Q: Why don't animals have three legs?

A: Animals don't have three legs because they would fall over.

Q: How do you sporgle a moogle?

A: You sporgle a moogle by using a sporgle.

Q: How many bonks are in a quoit?

A: There are three bonks in a quoit.

Q: How many rainbows does it take to jump from Hawaii to seventeen?

A: It takes two rainbows to jump from Hawaii to seventeen.

Q: Which colorless green ideas sleep furiously?

A: Ideas that are colorless, green, and sleep furiously are the ideas of a sleep furiously.

Q: Do you understand these questions?

A: I understand these questions.

OpenAI's text-generating system GPT-3 is now spewing out 4.5 billion words a day

Robot-generated writing looks set to be the next big thing

Introduction of GPT-3

- GPT-3 = Generative Pre-trained Transformer 3
- Generative means that the model's goal is to generate text. It wants to predict what word comes next.
- Pre-trained means that the algorithm doesn't need any more training. It has "read" 3,375,000,000 pages of text, including all of Wikipedia.
- Transformer is the algorithm the model uses. It specializes in how words are used in natural language.
- In short: it's autocomplete on steroids

Performance of Jarvis headlines so far

My “testing methodology”

- Original plan: rotate two ETAs in each ad group “Human vs AI” fight till the... CTR significance
- But then I remembered Martin Röttgerding’s “Debunking Ad Testing” (slides + part 1, part 2 part 3) talk from 2017 and quickly dropped that plan.
- Next plan was to use Ad Variations and A/B test Human vs AI headlines across many RSAs....
- But then I realized almost none of the headlines I eventually used were 100% Jarvis-generated, I almost always edit them a bit.
- Eventually, I simply added lots of new RSAs containing a mix of fully human-written headlines and new “AI-assisted” headlines and let them run for a while, to see which ones will get the most impressions.
- So this test has about 0% scientific value, but my goal for now is just to find out if it’s promising enough to keep using it.

AI-assisted vs 100% human impressions so far

GPT-3's strengths & weaknesses

Strengths

- GPT-3 is great for short and creative content like:
 - Headlines, titles, tweets
 - Product descriptions
 - Paragraphs
 - It can generate dozens of these in seconds, which is great for brainstorming and inspiration. No more staring at the blank page.
- It's not plagiarism. It's "inspired by" human text, but not copying it.

Weaknesses

- Can't write a narrative thread, with coherence and logic.
- Makes up stuff ("fake news"). Makes claims without evidence.
- Can't generate real new insights or new perspectives.
- Contains (human-based) biases around religion, gender, etc.

Be sure to read GPT-3 is the Sparring Partner You Didn't Know You Needed and The Search Singularity: How to Win in the Era of Infinite Content

So what should you do?

1. Know how to use AI for the stuff it's good at

- Getting good output is more art than science, keep tweaking the inputs, templates, tone of voice, until you're getting good outputs.
- Don't copy-paste any result without (fact-)checking and making sure it matches your tone.
- It's definitely worth the $20-$100/mo for anyone in marketing. Whether you're doing PPC, SEO, social, content... we all need to write (even if it's just emails) and this will speed it up.
- In short: use AI-assisted text when it makes sense, but don't publish 100% AI-generated text.

2. Know how to create content only humans can

- Still read those 6 copywriting/psychology books from the start, applying what's in there will put you in the top 1%.
- Create content around the five sources of thought leadership, this ensures it will be unique, human, and impossible to copy.

Creating thought leadership content goes beyond PPC or search, but is crucial for any brand or agency to stay relevant and noticeable.
